SUMMARY

Textile and Apparel Design student focused on translating concepts into refined visual and material outcomes. My practice is process-driven, with a strong inclination toward experimentation, iteration, and detail-oriented development. I approach design with a balance of conceptual thinking and practical execution, aiming to create thoughtful, well-resolved outcomes while continuously strengthening my design sensibility in contemporary contexts.

PROJECTS

Rawaani

A Romantic Vintage ready-to-wear collection for Spring/Summer 2026, developed as a sixth-semester apparel design project.

Apparel Design

Heritage Textiles

A study of Haryana's local grasses and their role in regional textiles and craft heritage.

Craft Research

Fluidfelt

A functional corset developed through a research-driven process focused on wearability and form. Felting creates a soft, tactile surface, while flexible wire structuring creates a non-rigid, adjustable structure.

Textile Design

Print Design

Print designs inspired by the delicate forms of berries and the Egyptian star cluster flower, developed into contemporary surface patterns with bold motifs and detailed all-over repeats.

Surface Design

Papaya

A colour and composition study based on research and exploration, using papaya as the primary reference to examine form, colour variations, and natural structure.

Colour Study

Bagh

Craft documentation on hand block printing in Bagh village, Madhya Pradesh.
